Welcome to the families and friends who are here to join me and our faculty and staff in offering a heartfelt congratulations to you—the graduates here today.

About a year ago we adopted a new theme: Transforming Lives. Transforming Communities. Transforming Higher Education. We are seeing this play out today as you are transformed into university graduates—people who deserve respect for the knowledge, skills and abilities you’ve acquired so that you might make meaningful contributions to your communities and demonstrate how education can create opportunity.

MSU Denver strives to engage every member of our University in the life of the larger community. Our roots are perhaps deeper than any other institution of higher education in Colorado: 93 percent of our students are from the metro Denver area, and if past trends continue, nearly 75 percent of our graduates will stay in state. Moreover, our students make up the most diverse student body of any university in Colorado.

We take our message of transformation into public schools so children know that they have the right and a responsibility to acquire an education. And our students apply their education to help solve problems in areas that range from public health to athletics to the arts. These are just a few ways MSU Denver is transforming communities.

We also listen and respond to what business and political leaders say is critical for our economic future, which has led to the creation of our on-campus Springhill Suites Denver Downtown at MSU Denver, the adjacent Hospitality Learning Center and the Center for Urban Education; the Aerospace and Engineering Sciences initiative that will provide an educated workforce for a thriving industry and offer employment potential to students interested in science, technology, engineering and math; and the creation of master’s degree programs in accountancy, social work and teacher education.

Innovative responses like these are truly transforming higher education in Colorado. MSU Denver demands academic rigor and creative thinking while offering students opportunities to acquire the skills and knowledge they need to build their own economic security as well as keep the Denver and Colorado economic engines humming.

In August 2015, MSU Denver will celebrate its 50th anniversary. By continuing our endeavor to transform lives, our communities and higher education, we believe the next 50 years will be even better than the last.

Carry this message of transformation with you, along with my best wishes for your future.

Best regards,

Stephen M. Jordan, Ph.D.

Dear 2014 Spring Graduation Candidates:

Welcome to the families and friends who are here to join me and our faculty and staff in offering a heartfelt congratulations to you—the graduates here today.

About a year ago we adopted a new theme: Transforming Lives. Transforming Communities. Transforming Higher Education. We are seeing this play out today as you are transformed into university graduates—people who deserve respect for the knowledge, skills and abilities you’ve acquired so that you might make meaningful contributions to your communities and demonstrate how education can create opportunity.

Moreover, our students make up the most diverse student body of any university in Colorado.

We take our message of transformation into public schools so children know that they have the right and a responsibility to acquire an education. And our students apply their education to help solve problems in areas that range from public health to athletics to the arts. These are just a few ways MSU Denver is transforming communities.

We also listen and respond to what business and political leaders say is critical for our economic future, which has led to the creation of our on-campus Springhill Suites Denver Downtown at MSU Denver, the adjacent Hospitality Learning Center and the Center for Urban Education; the Aerospace and Engineering Sciences initiative that will provide an educated workforce for a thriving industry and offer employment potential to students interested in science, technology, engineering and math; and the creation of master’s degree programs in accountancy, social work and teacher education.

Leora Rosenbaum and Jean Kelly
Attending Metro rarely entails merely attending class and completing assignments.”
—Genevieve N. Eigner-Ettelman

Before attending MSU Denver, Eigner was on a successful path to becoming a district store manager for a large corporation. But when it went bankrupt, she decided it was time to do what she really wanted—pursue higher education. “I chose Metro because some of my friends had very positive experiences here. It seemed like the best fit,” Eigner says. “I’m a much more enlightened, well-rounded, introspective and, most importantly, happy person for having come here.”

When she began her academic journey at MSU Denver, she declared criminal justice as her major, but soon realized psychology should be her second. After taking a few sociology courses, she uncovered her first minor, and then the historical piece began to serve a significant role in her understanding of the other three areas, thus creating her third major. She enjoys piecing together all these parts of the puzzle to better understand human behavior.

Eigner says her professors helped shape her degrees, as well as who she has become. In turn, she has left lasting impressions on them.

“I would rank Genevieve in the upper 5 percent of students I have taught in over two decades of teaching,” Linda Mariposa Marangia, Ph.D., professor of sociology, says. “She works full time, takes a full load of classes each semester and still finds time to volunteer for social causes.”

Melissa Monson, Ph.D., associate professor of sociology, says, “Ms. Eigner has developed a unique interdisciplinary approach to studying the world—one that will serve her well in future academic endeavors. She is fair-minded, empathetic and a keen logical thinker.”

Eigner has presented her own research at multiple conferences, and her contribution to the Colorado Charge—a research collaboration with the Governor’s Office of Community Partnerships—could be used to make a real difference in the lives of homeless veterans across the state.

“My ultimate passion in life is to conduct research that may uncover the progression of criminogenic behavior,” Eigner says. “I cannot accept that people are born to commit crime; I believe the choices they make in life, based on their resources and environment, are what lead to crime. By understanding those variables, positive interventions may occur, benefitting not just offenders but society as a whole.”

In addition to being active in campus research, presentations and community service activities, Eigner was a teacher’s assistant, served on the Student Conduct Hearing Board and in Students Against Interpersonal Violence, and held membership in numerous clubs and honor societies.

“I plan to take a year off and decide where to attend a Ph.D. program for clinical psychology with a concentration in forensics,” Eigner says. “In the meantime, I hope to find a job where I can put it into action all I’ve learned at MSU Denver.”
MSU Denver: Lives Transformed

As our graduates leave here today, they are positioned for success—good news for our economy, since a majority of MSU Denver degree holders stay in Colorado.

By 2020, almost two-thirds of Colorado jobs will require postsecondary education or training. The state’s goal is for nearly 63 percent of adults to have degrees by the same year. By current estimates, though, only about one in five Colorado ninth graders will earn a college degree. Survival in this 21st-century economy will require Colorado to transform how it views and delivers higher education.

MSU Denver is positioned to lead the way in this transformation, and it is a philosophy we strive to put into action every day. One way we do this is by occupying a deliberate educational niche in Colorado; it’s our mission to provide educational access and affordability in Colorado’s largest urban area.

MSU Denver’s student body, the most diverse among the state’s four-year institutions of higher education, mirrors the state’s racial and ethnic makeup; 34 percent of our students are of color and 31.5 percent are first-generation college students.

Our efforts to increase Latino enrollment and become a Hispanic-Serving Institution ultimately will benefit our entire community. We already are ranked among the top 100 colleges and universities in the country for graduating Latino students.

The board of trustees at MSU Denver continues to guide us in becoming more entrepreneurial, agile and responsive to the needs of our marketplace and community; we’re building public-private partnerships with industry leaders in hospitality and aerospace/advanced manufacturing. These kinds of efforts are making our programs more attractive to older students—the average age is 26—and to working professionals and people returning to refresh or learn new skills—almost 40 percent attend part time.

We actively attract veterans and military-connected students as well. Their numbers have grown by 41 percent over five years, making MSU Denver one of Colorado’s highest military-enrolling institutions; we were recognized by Military Times as one of America’s “Best Colleges for Veterans.”

MSU Denver strives to be Colorado’s best educational value, and the return on investment of an MSU Denver degree is impressive. Our tuition is the lowest among Colorado’s four-year universities and the College Measures Report shows that our bachelor’s degree graduates have one of the highest first-year earnings medians.

Students here get a superb academic education paired with future-focused career programs that equip them to function in the increasingly competitive economy and make meaningful contributions to our beloved state.

By keeping up this momentum, MSU Denver is making strides in transforming higher education and, in turn, creating great promise for Colorado’s economic future.

ACADEMIC ATTIRE

Academic attire is modeled after monks’ clothing from the Middle Ages, when college faculty and students were members of religious orders. In England, the faculty of many colleges and universities still wear gowns, hoods and caps in the classroom.

In the early 20th century, colleges and universities throughout the world adopted guidelines for the design and colors of academic attire. An institution may design and register special attire for its administrators and graduates, but it must conform to certain standards. Once registered, the design and color combination may not be duplicated by other institutions.

The bachelor’s gown is most often black and has long sleeves that taper to a point in the back. It is always worn closed. At MSU Denver, women do not wear a white collar with the gown. The hood worn by the President’s Award recipient is an MSU Denver bachelor’s degree hood that represents the graduating class.

The gown signifying the master’s degree also is usually black, but may be worn open or closed. It features oblong sleeves that hang below the wrist, tapering to a square cut with a cutaway arc.

Although usually black, the doctoral gown is sometimes seen in colors—usually gold, purple, blue or red. The gown may be worn open or closed. The opening of the gown is faced with velvet, and three velvet chevrons run across its bell-shaped sleeves. The velvet facing and chevrons may be black or the color representing the graduate’s field of study.

The hood varies in length and shape according to the degree it represents: the shortest and smallest signifies a bachelor’s degree, and the longest and widest signifies a doctoral degree. The velvet bordering the hood represents the graduate’s field of study.

The satin lining of the hood, each a specific design, represents the college or university at which the individual earned his or her degree.

The Oxford cap, or mortarboard as it is better known, completes the attire. In place of the hood, bachelor’s candidates at MSU Denver wear colored tassels on the Oxford cap to represent the academic department of the University from which they earned their degrees. Those holding graduate degrees usually wear black tassels, but those holding doctoral degrees may wear tassels of gold thread and may elect to wear a four-sided or eight-sided velvet tam instead of the Oxford cap. Some universities have designated the Cambridge cap—a large, soft beret—for their administrators and those who have earned a doctoral degree at that institution.

President Stephen M. Jordan, Ph.D., is wearing the University’s chain of office, a visible symbol of his authority as the institution’s leader.
Academic Colors

Master’s Degree Hood Colors
Business (MPAcc) – drab
Social Work (MSW) – citron
Education (MAT) – light blue

Bachelor’s Degree Tassel Colors
School of Business – drab
School of Letters, Arts and Sciences – white
School of Professional Studies – peacock blue

Academic Distinction
You will notice that some of our graduates are wearing one or more cords, stoles or medallions of various colors or designs around the neck of their gowns to represent high academic achievement. Those graduates who have achieved overall excellence are recognized by the University through three areas of distinction:

Summa Cum Laude (with highest praise) – gold and blue cord
Magna Cum Laude (with great praise) – silver and blue cord
Cum Laude (with praise) – bronze and blue cord

The University encourages students to enroll in and complete an especially rigorous course of interdisciplinary study in addition to their major and minor degree requirements. This course of study is known as the Honors Program.

Honors Program – gray cord

Honor Societies
Accounting Honor Society – royal blue cord
Tau Upsilon Alpha (Human Services) – white satin stole with the red Greek letters ADW
Association of Scholars of African American Studies – Kente stole, original colors of green, red, and gold blue
Delta Alpha Pi (International Honor Society for Individuals with Disabilities) – navy and gold cord
Alpha Phi Sigma (Criminal Justice and Criminology) – blue and gold cord
Delta Phi Alpha (German) – black, red and gold cord
Gamma Theta Upsilon (Geography) – blue, gold and brown cord

Golden Key (All-University Honor Society) – gold cord
Iota Iota Iota (Women’s Studies) – lavender cord; officers wear medallions with gold ribbon as well
Kappa Delta Pi (Education) – purple and green cord
Lambda Pi Eta (Communication Arts and Sciences) – red and white cord
The National Society of Collegiate Scholars – golden cord and burgundy cord tied together; (One of the cords has a gold medallion. The medallion is circular with a torch in the center, a book underneath the torch, three stars above the torch and a laurel wreath facing upward at the base of the torch. Surrounding the wreath, torch and stars are the words “The National Society of Collegiate Scholars.”)
Phi Alpha (Social Work) – brass medallion with the Greek letters FA hanging from a royal blue and yellow neck ribbon
Phi Alpha Theta (History) – red and blue cord
Phi Sigma Iota (Foreign Language) – purple and white cord
Pi Kappa Lambda (Music) – gold and white cord
Pi Sigma Alpha (Political Science) – brass medallion with the Greek letters PSA in black hanging from a red neck ribbon
